

Individual Reflection - Anton Svarén

- What do I want to learn or understand better?
 - I want to get better at helping others and try to put more time into it. I think it would help the group a lot, as some in our group have been stuck in the same spot for quite some time. It will increase productivity for the whole group.
- How can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new?
 - I can have “work-shops” if I notice certain knowledge problems from the rest of the group.
- What is my contribution towards the team's use of Scrum?
 - As I am the PO, I have had a meeting with the stakeholder and got their opinion on what is good with the application and what needs to change. When I talked to the stakeholder I explained our ideas behind the decisions we made through the sprint. I analyzed the feedback we got and tried to argue why we did as we did and why we think that our way is a good one. I did this in order to have feedback that was valuable to the team. I created stories and tasks during the Sprint Planning and made sure that everyone in the team had something to do and were not stuck somewhere. I have been active during the meetings and tried to get everyone to express their opinion when we're making decisions. I have created meetings for the Sprint planning and sprint review. I have tried to hold the meetings in order to have some structure and let everyone talk. I have reviewed the code provided by my developers(including myself).
- What is my contribution towards the team's deliveries?
 - I implemented the functionality for the navigation bar. I helped Hanna with some XML problems. I have had some meetings with Alejandra and Irene, in order to help them with problems such as git, android studio and kotlin. I have reviewed code, been active on our Sprint-Backlog, made sure that people are reviewing the merge requests that are on our github repository.
